

NZFBI EXAM 2009

Unit 8 – Fire Safety

It was obvious that those who knew their subjects knew them well. It is suggested that candidates expand their reading base to include the Fire Service intranet and as many Fire Service publications involving fire safety and fire performance as possible.

Noticeable this year was the very small number of diagrams used, where it would have been of advantage to a candidate to explain a building element or a fire investigation term.

However from an examiner's point of view it was quite a successful paper with an overall good level of knowledge demonstrated.
